... for a sustainable Pacific

DO YOU WANT TO HELP OUR PACIFIC ISLAND NEIGHBOURS REDUCE GLOBAL WARMING?

SPONSOR A COMPOSTING BIN FOR EASTER ISLAND:

Each 1kg of composted waste saves 1kg of greenhouse gas emissions

Easter Island, famed for its Moai statues, is threatened with environmental catastrophe. The remote, almost treeless Pacific island faces the dual threat of desertification and contamination of its water supply from landfill waste.

IHFA is an Australian-based NGO specialising in finding practical solutions to the environmental problems facing our Pacific neighbours.

Our goal is to provide a composting bin to each of Easter Island's 1,200 households, assisting local efforts to save the island's environment.

Composting diverts organic waste from landfill which threatens the Island's water supply, while providing enriched soils for subsistence farmers to grow healthy food.

Tumbleweed's bins provide the perfect solution. The bins are rust, rat and dog proof and are 100% recyclable at the end of their life. Tumbleweed have agreed to provide one extra bin for every 10 bins sponsored by IHFA.

$150 one off payment or $15 paid monthly for a year will make a significant difference towards the ecological sustainability of this beautiful, unique island
